CHARMS, TALISMANS & ENCHANTMENTS

Symbols and symbolism are popular in almost every civilization, culture, and religion that has evolved on Earth. They are deeply ingrained in the way of our life itself. Symbols impact our subconscious mind and if their influences are strong enough, then they could stimulate confidence, effort, and good outcomes. Whether we realize or not paintings, pictures, jewelry, statues, birds, animals, and so forth have meanings and effect on us.

Mankind, after closely watching nature, events, and environmental life over a period of centuries, has developed a vast and time-tested database of Positive Symbols. When the geometric shape, size, meaning and their other nuances are properly understood and activated, it results in transmission/amplification of "energy" - the vital life force that governs everything in the Universe. Some classical examples are Crystals, Pyramids, Vedic Yantras, Sacred Geometry, Fengshui Objects, statuary, etc.

Usage of positive symbols can alter energy flow and enhance the surrounding space. It is the easiest way to introduce positivism in our environment. They are normally categorized into 2 types: to remedy/cure a problem, to heal a situation; to act as a booster or enhancer to bring about harmony and prosperity.

There are energy tools (like Crystals) that when placed (after processing), can dissolve negative energy and stream out purpose-solving, high positive energy.

These symbols, when processed and positioned correctly, will definitely yield results. By creating an environment rich with positive symbolism that elicit positive thinking, focused minds, confidence and innovativeness, progress and prosperity will result. We will then become aware of the life force in the environment in which we had altered the energy, thus enabling us to empower it. This powerful symbolism will reinforce our energy levels to benefit in every aspect of our lives.

For example, a Black Tourmaline Crystal Pendant can balance the emotions and calm the mind; a pair of Pink Mandarin Ducks statuettes can bond a couple more strongly; a set of Sailing Ship Coins can instigate cash flow in Business; a Pyramid can accumulate Positive Energy; a Shri Yantra can remove financial blocks, a custom built Crystal Energy Grid can bring in Health, Wealth, Harmony & Happiness, etc.

CHARMS, TALISMANS & ENCHANTMENTS

But how can merely the statue of a Phoenix bird bring motivation and new opportunities?

1. The shape and design of the gadget determines the nature of the energy that the remedy can receive and transmit.
2. The raw material and size decide the storage capacity and life of the remedy, when energized.
3. Programming of the remedy defines the problem to be solved or the purpose to be realized and the Programming only fully dedicates the energy of the remedy to the purpose and binds it to the person.

It is thus important to realize that the remedy by itself is only the hardware part (like a computer). You must supply the electricity (energy) to switch it on and keep it running. But ultimately you must supply the proper software (programming) to make it work. Appropriate placement then completes the circle.

There are some who would argue that the "shape" of the talisman or remedy itself does signify a specific energy and hence does not require any other processing. Sure, it does: that's why it has been selected as an energy tool. For example, the shape of a majestic elephant does signify the energies related to strength, shrewdness, and long memory - but that alone is not sufficient. The image or statue should be energized in ways where it stores enough to last for a few years, not weeks. Then the stored energy should be programmed as to whom and for what purpose it should work. The programming also helps the remedy from being corrupted from the onslaught of negative energies that it surely must face (on behalf of its owner), once activated. This way, if and when the vital positive energy of the remedy is critically overwhelmed by negativity at one stage, the remedy simply breaks and declares its inability to serve (it's owner) further, rather than damage it's owner.

Will a Laughing Buddha or a Crystal or another such object that is bought off a store shelf, or online, give results?

The simple answer is a firm "no" if it has not been programmed and energized. Merely just energizing will not help. The energy needs to be stabilized, sealed, and then directed through specialized, intentional programming.

CHARMS, TALISMANS & ENCHANTMENTS

In fact, the source of the energy remedies play a key role in determining the effectiveness. Many who buy the same Feng Shui product from two different sources will find that one is working so well and the other may not. But they never bother to ask why that happens. The answer is subtle, the source determines the "root energy" stored in the products.

1. It is a key element (the root energy) that the qualified expert (who is going to sell/channel the remedies) checks before selecting.
2. Then the products are:
 - a. cleansed of negative energy that might have arisen while it was being manufactured or by simply changing hands
 - b. instilled with auspicious and positive energy, and
 - c. kept in proper storage area that has a strong positive energy field before being sold
3. Finally, when sold:
 - a. the expert programs the remedy to the purpose and the user, and
 - b. explains the ideal placement of the energy tool in their place.

Then and only then will these remedial tools yield results.

In modern living, where the environment at macro level is highly influenced by many factors beyond our control, micro level energy correction done with empowered remedies can effectively bring in and retain Health, Wealth, Harmony, and Happiness.

DRYING HERBS

1. Harvest herbs before they flower and remove any damaged leaves or stems.
2. Tie the stems together and wrap the bundle with string or rubber bands. Make sure all leaves are facing the same direction.
3. Hang the herbs up by their stems. Tie a paper bag over the bundles to catch seeds.
4. Hang your bundles somewhere dry and dark. Humid areas will spoil drying herbs.
5. Your herbs are fully dried when they are crisp all the way through. Taking down your bundles too early will result in spoiled herbs.

FRESH

Freshly harvested herbs will wilt and spoil quickly unless properly stored. Wrap them in a damp napkin or paper towel and store in a cold place and they will last 1-2 weeks. You can also put them stem-first in a jar or vase with an inch of water in the bottom to keep them green. Fresh herbs should be harvested only when you plan to use them.

STORING HERBS

DRIED

Dried herbs can be ground into powder or kept whole. Keep your dried herbs in air-tight containers like jars, tupperware, or reusable bags. Always store dried herbs in a dark and dry place to prevent them from re-hydrating. Herbs that are not completely dried will mold and spoil. Properly stored dried herbs can last 1-3 years.

MAGICKAL MONEY OILS

When an herb or flower becomes too hard to find, or too cumbersome to cultivate, its oil is a perfect alternative. There are only two different kinds of oils:

Essential oils - which carry the essence of the plant in a carrier oil

Perfume oils - which are artificially scented

It is always best to use an essential oil whenever possible. They are more expensive than perfume oils, but a little really does go a long way. There are quite a few companies that sell essential oils and you will need to do your own research in choosing which company matches your personal ethics.

If you can only get one essential oil, choose Bergamot. This versatile oil can be rubbed onto the palms of your hands, in your wallet, and on your dryer balls to attract money.

However, whenever possible, it is always better to create your own essential oils at home as they will have the added benefit of your personal energy.

Using essential oils for manifesting money and prosperity can include a mix of different herbal and flower blends.
